Heather Pease

Valley swimmer trains with Olympic team

By Virginia Parke

A smile lurking at the corners of his lips and pride beaming from his baby blue eyes, Douglas Pease, known by his friends as Doug, recounts the moment when his daughter Heather made her decision. "It was while she was watching the 1984 televised Olympic synchronized swimming event. It was the first time the sport had been included and two American women won medals. After is was over, she stood up in front of the television and stated "Dad I'm going to do that." And she is.

Twenty year-old Heather Pease is currently in Atlanta, Georgia training with the 1996 U.S. Olympic Synchronized Swimming Team. Doug tells how she began her love of swimming at age eight under the encouraging eye of her mentor Di Whitesides. "Back then she won the "fish" award and that set the hook."

Heather is the fourth child in the Pease family. Doug grins as he relates Heather's statement about the effort it has taken to reach her goal, "I guess I was the family project." "The children have followed their own interests and skills. Robin is raising two beautiful grandchildren, Douglas has just returned from Tokyo where he was a professor of American History and English and Holly is an executive in the computer banking industry."

Doug and Sarah Anne Pease moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1961. Doug was a Chinese linguist at the time stationed at the Navy Defense Language Institute in Monterey. He

A PLACE IN THE SUN

It is my birthday today. This is not a call for presents and congratulations. It is an expression of my gratitude for the gift of being born.

This gift is loaded with all things human. Feelings, hitches in my get-along, wonder at the past and excitement about the future. Most of all, I am glad to be here. Not that I always am, here.

Driving down the Valley many times I am surprised to rejoin the now at the stop light before Hwy. One. Many times I have passed the gentleman who risks life and limb to collect garbage tossed by the roadside by others who are really not here. I am always past him before I can stop, ask his name and thank him for his service. Too busy trying to be somewhere besides where I am.

When I am here, it is a pleasure to hear the geese making honking sounds on their way south for the winter. The excited sound of children's voices playing in the Tularcitos School yard is very comforting. The lengthening golden sun rays reflecting off the hills and the changing of the Garland Ranch area trees to bright yellow along with the crimson poison oak vines add to my visual delight. Giving and receiving hugs is wonderful. Horses standing together, nose to tail, swishing the flies away from each others faces always intrigues me. Exploring ideas about all things intellectual is great fun. I won't talk about what I smell, since most of it causes me to sneeze when the pollen is in flight. A small price.

Among my greatest gifts I count all who have taken the time to answer my questions, pose for pictures, share some of their life's history, activities and their friendship with me. When I figuratively lay all my years out like a chain, the links that hold it together have been those who have taken the time to share who they are at that moment of time.

So back to the now. Hmm, wonder if that could be developed into an interesting movie. There I go leaving now again. This now stuff is demanding work and when I managed to be here, very rewarding. For in this moment, I wish to extend my congratulations to all of you on your birthdays, whatever the date. It is a joy to share this gift of life with you.

FUN IN THE SUN

Dave Lyon

You know the Indian Summer is really over here in Carmel Valley when those Halloween pumpkins start collapsing on the front deck and stores are already on their second round of fresh Christmas wreaths.

At my house the seasonal change is marked by the arrival of the rapidly shortening days and the increasingly expanding cat, last seen chasing that final ray of warm sunlight across the yard. Never mind that last pesky gopher of the year, time to wander inside and take over my favorite chair for a long winter's nap.

Yes, that time of year again; only 36 more shopping days until you know when -- and that can only mean one thing -- time for the 37th (really) annual Carmel Valley Community Center sponsored Santa's Fly-In.

The time honored valley tradition will take place this year on Saturday, the 9th of December. Santa and Mrs. Claus will arrive at 11:00 in the morning at the Carmel Valley Airfield where they will be greeted by the usual assortment of kids, bikes, firetrucks, clowns, old cars, horses, marching bands, cheerleaders, parade floats and three wise men. From the airfield they will be whisked, via parade, through the village to the Community Center on Ford Road where Santa will hear holiday wishes from all.

Kids: be sure to get your parents to the airfield early for the best seats on the fire trucks. The parade assembles at 10:00 a.m.; don't be late. Any and all persons, clubs, groups or organizations wishing to be in the Fly-In Parade must contact CVCYC Prez Dave Lyon at 659-3036 no later than December 5 in order to secure a spot in the parade. All of last year's parade entrants will be contacted in the next few weeks, so watch those mail boxes.

The Carmel Valley Recreation and Park District is very pleased to present the 3rd annual Village Tree Lighting Ceremony, to be held on Saturday, December 2 from 4:30-6:00 in the evening, at the flag pole in the Community Park. Bring the whole family and enjoy this special evening of fun, live entertainment and good fellowship, as the Recreation and Park District celebrates 10 years of service to Carmel Valley. As an added treat, the volunteer board of the Park District will sing their own version of, "Yule Be Seeing Me..." Do not miss this special community tree lighting event.

The Board of Directors of the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center would like to extend their sincerest appreciation and gratitude to the good folks of Carmel Valley for their outstanding level of support and involvement over this past year. The Community Center exists largely on the generous financial support of the residents of Carmel Valley, without whom there would simply be no Community Center.

Many thanks to the Board of Directors for all their efforts to make things happen and to the many community volunteers who have worked so hard behind the scenes this year to make possible all the community events the CVCYC has sponsored.

Special kudos to the Community Center's own "Lawn Ranger", Mr. Lee Warner, for his outstanding job at keeping the Community Center and the Community Park looking so great. Further thanks to Rick Simms for keeping the pool strong for yet another season in the sun, and of course, the special "Gold Whistle Award" to Pool Director Di Whitesides, for keeping a lid on our favorite summertime wateringhole. Can't believe another season has come and gone.

CUSD to hold Barn Sale of surplus equipment on Saturday

The Carmel Unified School District will be having its School Surplus Barn Sale on Saturday, November 18, from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at their Scarlett Road property site. The barn is located off the west end of Scarlett Road, 6.8 miles from Highway 1 off Carmel Valley Road.

The items for sale include furniture, (tables, chairs, desks, bookcases, etc.) books, computer units, word processor, printers, typewriters, calculators, audio visual equipment, sewing machines, slate table tops, radial arm saws, blackboards, lockers, maintenance equipment, office equipment, a school bus and much more.

The terms will be cash only and purchased items must be removed by 2:30 p.m. the day of the sale. All items are "as is".

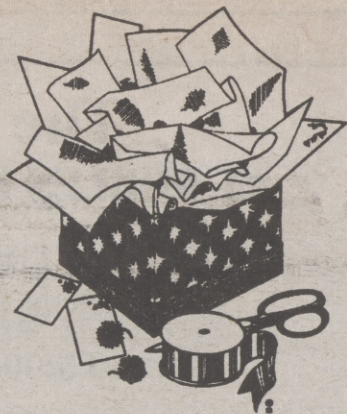

There is a wide range of items available.

The fight continues to keep local control of ambulance services

A declaratory relief action was filed November 7 in Monterey Superior Court asking the court to rule on the rights of Carmel and Carmel Valley area local government agencies to retain local control of ambulance services.

The filing agencies also are seeking a temporary restraining order to prevent Monterey County from implementing countywide ambulance service in the Carmel Valley-Carmel corridor until the legal question can be answered.

At issue is the question of whether the County Emergency Medical Services Agency (EMS) can force the localities to accept a new countywide ambulance service scheduled to begin January 1. Directors of the agencies filing the action say the countywide ambulance plan will result in higher costs and a lower level of ambulance service than citizens in their districts now enjoy.

The declaratory relief action was filed on behalf of the areas served by the City of Carmel, Carmel Highlands Fire Protection District, Cypress Fire Protection District, MidCarmel Valley Fire Protection District, Carmel Valley Fire Protection District and Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance (CRFA).

It is the position of the filing agencies that they have the right of local control over ambulance services under California Health and Safety Code Section 1797.201. Recently the agencies have independently informed Monterey County EMS that they are exercising their "201" rights.

The County EMS Agency has refused to acknowledge the rights of localities to choose their ambulance provider, and actually filed litigation against Cypress Fire Protection District to prevent it from continuing to be served by CRFA. EMS even threatened to cut off 911 services to the local agencies. Thus, the local agencies have requested that the court award attorneys' fees and costs incurred in seeking this declaratory relief.

Peninsula Paramedics (PenMed), the private ambulance company chosen by EMS, claims that it needs the higher ambulance income from the Cypress area (mouth of Carmel Valley), to make its countywide service economically feasible.

PenMed, in its contract with EMS, is only required to meet an average ambulance response time in the Carmel area of 8 minutes 90% of the time, whereas the actual current average response time of CRFA ambulances is 3-5 minutes.

The local public agencies desire to ensure that there are always two ambulances with paramedics on call in the Carmel Valley-Carmel corridor 24 hours per day, whereas PenMed cannot provide that assurance.

The local public agencies wish to continue providing a high level of ambulance service at a lower cost, rather than have a lower level of service at higher cost by a for-profit company.

VALLEY VOICE

Fran Farina

Growing up in New York state, Nelson Rockefeller always seemed to be our governor. Actually, it makes sense when you realize he held the position for 16 years before moving into national politics.

Rocky was a great governor. First and foremost, you never worried that he was being influenced by anyone since he had enough money to buy and sell them all.

He also spared no expense. I remember moving to Florida and receiving a two page telegram from him urging my support for his re-election. This wasn't a public opinion message limited to a certain number of words. No sir. When Rocky spent money, he went first class all the way.

People complain about the amount of money spent in political campaigns and talk about how candidates are being bought and sold by special interests. The concern has become so great that groups are organizing for reform initiatives on the 1996 ballot.

One of the initiatives will attempt to enact strict contribution limits and require candidates to raise 75% of their money from those they seek to represent. The objective is to force legislators to spend more time listening to their constituents and less time currying favor with the special interests.

Pete Wilson and Kathleen Brown spent $50 million in their race for the governor's mansion last year. Dianne Feinstein and Michael Huffington waged the most costly Senate race in the nation's history -- $43 million. Those figures would cause concern to almost anyone.

Yes, Rocky was a good governor. I wonder how people would characterize him today for spending his money on election campaigns? Would he be categorized with Michael Huffington? I hope not. Rockefeller had years of public service to his credit before becoming governor of the largest state in the nation.

I can't think of telegrams without thinking of Rocky. What a guy. What class. I wonder what he'd think of today's election campaigns?

LETTERS to the Editor

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

For more than two years I have been involved in talks with the Pebble Beach Company regarding the proposed golf course in the Pescadero Forest area.

With the recent release of the Revised Draft Environmental Impact Report (EIR), my fears, along with those of many others, have been

Where the River Runs

Some of it is visual litter, most of it is visual pollution. It is growing like locusts all along our once pristine Carmel Valley Road ... from the Village to the mouth of the Valley.

Illegal signs, posters, electric billboards, and placards clutter the view of flowers, trees, shopping areas, mountains and intersections.

Some signs are hand done, some are professional. Most speak of a lack of class and a desperate absence of respect for the wonderful beauty of our Valley.

Folks chose Carmel Valley to get far away from the glitter and neon of L.A. urban visual blight and the tacky-tacky hegemony of rust-belt towns.

Let's hope that the offending businesses, churches, schools,

Realtors and private parties will cease their violations of the laws and aspire to uphold the Valley's traditional means of attracting attention through permanent improvement and beautification of their properties.

Tasteful, wood-carved or wood lettered, stone or cast meal signs have, for decades, been the cultural standard in the Valley.

We do not need to allow or encourage this recent plague of cheap, often illegal, neon, banners, sandwich boards, posters and fliers littered along our Carmel Valley Road. It must cease.

Whether it is a charity, a political matter or an effort to draw business, the growing visual pollution along this precious roadway detracts from tranquility and property values.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

Tough break. I thought I had a candidate, but instead of going for it, and using his book money to help finance his campaign, General Powell has decided to pass it up. So, who is left? I think we're back to "Nobody for President". We can't afford Clinton's war in Bosnia, and we can do without candidates anxious to use the White House to promote their personal ideologies.

On a more cheerful subject, a lady judge in Venezuela is being charged with accepting bribe money, which was discovered concealed inside her lower underwear. In the U.S. a good attorney could have had the case thrown out for lack of a search warrant, or whatever.

And ever more cheerful, S. F. Bay communities with government help are trying, rather urgently, to find places to dispose of virtually unlimited amounts of sewage. They would like to sell it to communities like ours, and Santa Cruz County, for use in irrigating crops. At a meeting in Salinas on November 6, they offered to sell it to us for $1000 per acre foot, an outlandish price to say the least.

They had heard about the project we're building to use sewage effluent to irrigate artichoke farms near Castroville. I explained to them that there could be marketing problems trying to convince consumers that strained and treated sewage would be completely free of health hazards; viruses, for example.

There would also have to be quality standards set up. Some unscrupulous retailers might claim their products were superior because they were grown with high class sewage effluent from Carmel-by-the-Sea, rather than from San Francisco.

confirmed as to the substantial damage to the environment that would occur with a golf course in the Pescadero Forest.

First is the loss of the valuable native Monterey Pine stand. Then there will be a drastic impact on the existing wildlife, as well as the destruction of a beautiful natural habitat. Therefore, I wish to announce that I will not support any proposal that includes a golf course in the Pescadero Forest.

However, "Alternative 2", which begins at the existing Equestrian Center, as recommended by the revised EIR could be an acceptable alternative. It would have a "less than significant impact" on the proposed area.

Citizens for Alternate Water Solutions (CAWS) appreciates the support of those who voted no on Measure C, exhibiting the awareness and sensitivity to our environment which is necessary to exist within natural resource limits. Supported by thousands of voters, a grass roots campaign based upon truth will always succeed.

Many members of CAWS have the technical expertise to assist Cal-Am in finalizing plans for alternatives to the dam. John Brennan, a civil engineer and chairman of CAWS, in conjunction with other topical experts, has volunteered his services.

Should proponents and Cal-Am seek to pursue the dam project, CAWS will oppose their efforts before the Public Utilities Commission and any other permitting agencies. As a last resort we are prepared to seek relief in the courts. However, above all, CAWS is committed to alternate water solutions.

Kauffman starts off race with anti-gun proposal

In 1977, the mother of former Monterey County Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman was murdered with a handgun during a robbery at the business she owned.

On November 13, Strasser Kauffman began her 1996 race for the state Assembly by kicking off another campaign for passage of tough local gun control ordinances that will "get something done about guns right now, right here in Monterey and Santa Cruz Counties", Strasser Kauffman has stated.

The county ordinances, she will campaign to enact, target 254 Monterey and Santa Cruz County gun dealers who are operating with federal firearms licenses but do not possess local permits as required by state law. Some of them may be selling weapons out of their homes. Her proposal is fashioned after a comprehensive model law now being considered by Contra Costa County Supervisors.

"My mother, Leoni Irene Fuesler, was robbed and murdered with a handgun in 1977," Strasser Kauffman says. "I have always supported tougher gun control laws and will continue to do so in the state Assembly. But I am not content to wait. I will use the energy of my political campaign -- the money, volunteers and opportunity to talk with thousands of voters -- to fight the NRA (National Rifle Association). I want to take on the gun lobby. I want to out-debate them, out-work them, out-organize them, out-campaign them."

Her proposed local ordinances would: require people selling guns to obtain a county permit; prohibit gun dealers from operating out of homes or residential areas; ban gun stores from within 500 feet of homes, schools, parks, churches and liquor stores; require gun dealers to keep records of ammunition sales; and force gun stores to adopt adequate security measures and safe storage.

CV Church offers "A Nice Night Out"

by Grace Darcy

Enjoy "A Nice Night Out at 6:30 P.M. pm Sunday, November 19 at Rancho Canada, Carmel Valley Road. The event is a dinner dance and concert featuring the BLC Jazz Trio, comprised of Lurena Brubaker, contralto, Michael Culver, percussionist and Tom Lawson, piano. Tickets are $30 each and reservations are required by November 16. All proceeds will go toward refurbishing Carmel Valley Community Chapel.

Lurena Brubaker has performed throughout the United States and in Europe. In the mid-1970s, she sang at the Festival of the Black Madonna in Krakow, Poland and while there, met the man who later became Pope John Paul II. Brubaker is a studio singer who has sung back up for many high profile personalities, including the famed Little Richard.

Michael Culver played percussion with the Toledo, Ohio symphony in the 1970s and later at the prestigious Mozart Festival in Salzburg, Austria. More recently he has performed at Hidden Valley Music Seminars. He continued his studies under music legend Cal Tjader.

Tom Lawson is a 30 year veteran of the California music scene. As part of the mid-1960s pop music explosion, Lawson signed his first recording contract at the age of 18. He has since shared the stage with such legendary groups as "Steppenwolf" and "Iron Butterfly". His many music compositions have been performed by local bands as well as by a noted quartet that specializes in sacred music and for which he is Music Director.

For reservations or further information call 659-2278.

Rancho San Carlos to teach everything about Oak trees

"All About Oaks", a family hike and workshop sponsored by the Rancho San Carlos Education Foundation, will be held Saturday, November 18 at Nature's Classroom (Rancho San Carlos and Carmel Valley Roads) from 9:30 a.m. to noon.

Science Educator, Suzanne Sawyer, will start the educational day with an easy to moderate hike through an oak woodland on the Santa Lucia Preserve in Carmel Valley. Focus will be on native plants and animals associated with oaks. After the hike families may play the "Acorn Survival Game" and discover why very few acorns become mature oaks. The day will be rounded out by determining the age of an old oak tree and by planting an acorn to take home.

This program is open to families with children 6 - 12. Space is limited; call Suzanne Sawyer for reservations at 626-3068.

Most of us think life insurance is a bet with an insurance company, when in fact life insurance is a deal with an insurance company. The "bet" approach goes something like this: "I bet I don't die tomorrow, but if I do, I win because you have to pay out all that money on my first premium." The "deal" approach takes the longer view: "If I live to be 100, you send me a check for all the death benefit." Since more of us are living to age 100 and beyond, the "deal" approach is attracting more attention than it used to.

The "let's make a deal" approach to buying a life insurance policy can be very rewarding, because a life insurance contract still boasts tax-deferred accumulation of "excess premium". This implies the deal involves sending too much money to the insurance company ... wouldn't you, if you could get 6.75% tax-advantaged interest on it this month? If we could rid ourselves of the vision of an insurance company as a greedy monster poised to devour all our premiums, we could make better use of the deals it offers.

Death and taxes are certainties. But there are other events we can predict with some precision: a home down-payment, college expenses - for us, if we retrain into a new career - or for our children, a wedding for a daughter, maybe a divorce settlement if we find ourselves in the statistical 75% who will face that event, a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity if we only had the cash, or the onset of a severe health problem in later life. We can design these possibilities into today's extremely flexible life insurance contracts, arrange to send the company too much money, and plan to take it out as events unfold in a lifetime. Later on, we could apply the cash accumulation to fund an annuity, to send us a monthly check for the rest of our lives if that becomes more important than the death benefit.

For those who think they can do better than the 6.75% current rate by investing in stocks and bonds, there are life insurance contracts which allow the owner to accumulate excess premiums in one or several portfolios of stocks and bonds.

For some people, estate taxes may be as much of a threat as death itself. In such cases, a carefully designed use of life insurance may prove to be the simplest and most effective response to both threats.

And so on, to include business arrangements and charitable arrangements funded by life insurance.

It's true, life insurance is not an investment. For each contract, the insurance company must pay the costs of actuarial risk, the costs of administration, the costs of lapsed contracts which have not repaid their initial expenses, the costs of sales commissions ... and there must be a profit. That's part of the deal. For a well run life insurance company, there is no bet at all ... the company wins on the averages. And so do policyholders who know what the deal is all about.

The Sun's Review of Preliminary Reports

After months of searching you've finally found it -- your perfect dream home. But is it perfect? Will you be purchasing more than just a beautiful home? Will you also be acquiring liens placed on the property by prior owners? Have documents been recorded that will restrict your use of the property?

The preliminary report will provide you with the opportunity, prior to purchase, to review matters affecting your property which will be excluded from coverage under your title insurance policy unless removed or eliminated before your purchase.

To help you better understand this bewildering subject, the California Land Title Association has answered some of the questions most commonly asked about preliminary reports.

Q. What is a Preliminary Report?

A. A preliminary report is a report prepared prior to issuing a policy of title insurance that shows the ownership of a specific parcel of land, together with the liens and encumbrances thereon which will not be covered under a subsequent title insurance policy.

Q. What role does a preliminary report play in the real estate process?

A. A preliminary report lists, in advance of purchase, title defects, liens and encumbrances which would be excluded from coverage if the requested title insurance policy were to be issued as of the date of the preliminary report. The report may then be reviewed and discussed by the parties to a real estate transaction and their agents.

Thus, a preliminary report provides the opportunity to seek the removal of items referenced in the report which are objectionable to the buyer prior to purchase.

Q. When and how is the preliminary report produced?

A. Shortly after escrow is opened, an order will be placed with the title company which will then begin the process involved in producing the report.

This process calls for the assembly and review of certain recorded matters relative to both the property and the parties to the transaction. Examples of recorded matters include a deed of trust recorded against the property or a lien recorded against the buyer or seller for an unpaid court award or unpaid taxes.

These recorded matters are listed numerically as "exceptions" in the preliminary report. They will remain exceptions from title insurance coverage unless eliminated or released prior to the transfer of title.

Q. What should I look for when reading my preliminary report?

A. You will be interested, primarily, in the extent of your ownership rights. This means you will want to review the ownership interest in the property you will be buying as well as any claims, restrictions or interests of other people involving the property.

The report will note in a statement of vesting the degree, quantity, nature and extent of the owner's interest in

SPCA Thrift Shop moves

The SPCA Thrift Shop is moving from Village Drive to Chambers Lane, next door to Randy's Carmel Valley Market.

The old location will close November 23 and the shop will open in its new place on December 1. Everything is on sale for 1/2 price prior to the move.

The SPCA will be most grateful for donations of plywood for shelves and plastic laundry baskets. Donations of clothes, books, etc. should be delayed until the move takes place if possible. The new location is much larger and will enable acceptance of larger items, such as furniture. Staying open for longer hours is planned and volunteers are being sought for this worthy cause.

the real property. The most common form of interest is "fee simple" or "fee" which is the highest type of interest an owner can have in land.

Liens, restrictions and interests of others which are being excluded from coverage will be listed numerically as "exceptions" in the preliminary report. These may be claims by creditors who have liens or liens for payment of taxes or assessments. There may also be recorded restrictions which have been placed in a prior deed or contained in what are termed CC&Rs - covenants, conditions and restrictions. Finally, interests of third parties are not uncommon and may include easements given by a prior owner which limit your use of the property. When you buy property you may not wish to have these claims or restrictions on your property. Instead, you may want to clear the unwanted items prior to purchase.

In addition to the limitations noted above, a printed list of standard exceptions and exclusions listing items not covered by your title insurance policy may be attached as an exhibit item to your report. Unlike the numbered exclusions, which are specific to the property you are buying, these are standard exceptions and exclusions appearing in title insurance policies. The review of this section is important, as it sets forth matters which will not be covered under your title insurance policy, but which you may wish to investigate, such as governmental laws or regulations governing building and zoning.

Q. Will the preliminary report disclose the complete condition of the title to a property?

A. No. The report does not show the condition of title, but merely reports the current ownership and matters that the title company will exclude from coverage if a title insurance policy should later be issued.

Q. Is a preliminary report the same thing as title insurance?

A. Definitely not. A preliminary report is an offer to insure, it is not a report of a complete history of recorded documents relating to the property. A preliminary report is a statement of terms and conditions of the offer to issue a title insurance policy, not a representation as to the condition of title.

These distinctions are important for the following reasons: first, no contract or liability exists until the title insurance policy is issued to a particular insured person and others cannot claim the benefit of the policy.

Q. Can I be protected against title risks prior to the close of the real estate transaction?

A. Yes, you can. Title companies can protect your interest through the issuance of "binders" and "commitments."

A binder is an agreement to issue insurance giving temporary coverage until such time as a formal policy is issued. A commitment is a title insurer's contractual obligation to insure title to real property once its stated requirements have been met.

Discuss with your title insurer the best means to protect your interests.

Q. How do I go about clearing unwanted liens and encumbrances?

A. You will wish to carefully review the preliminary report. Should the title to the property be clouded, you and your agents will work with the seller and the seller's agents to clear the unwanted liens and encumbrances prior to taking title.

Q. Who can I turn to for further information regarding preliminary reports?

a. Your real estate agent and your attorney, should you choose to use one, will help explain the preliminary report to you. Your escrow and title company can also be helpful sources.

Conclusion: In a business which is directed at risk elimination, the effort leading to the production of the preliminary report, which is designed to facilitate the issuance of a policy of title insurance, is perhaps the most important function undertaken.

Mid Valley Fire needs new board member

Fifth District Supervisor, Sam Karas, is seeking volunteer applicants to fill a vacancy on Monterey County's MidCarmel Valley Fire Protection District Board of Directors, for a term from January 1, 1996 through December 31, 2000. The five person Board of Directors is responsible for governing the Fire District.

The Board consists of five members who are appointed by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors. The MidCarmel Valley Board of Directors serve as volunteers for the Fire Protection District and receive no compensation. The Board is responsible for setting District policies, and budget and expenditure control as well as setting short and long range goals.

A Board member must live within the MidCarmel Valley Fire Protection District, work on committees for the Board as appointed, and serve a four year term of office.

MidCarmel Valley Fire Protection District covers eight square miles extending from Rancho San Carlos Road (W) to Miramonte (E). The Department has a force of nine paid positions and forty volunteer positions providing fire protection and medical emergency services. The Board meetings are held the fourth Wednesday of every month at 7:30 p.m. at the MidCarmel Valley Fire Station.

Interested applicants residing in the Fire District are encouraged to send a letter by November 20, 1995 stating a desire to serve, and a brief resume including home address and daytime telephone number to: Sam Karas, 1200 Aguajito Road, Suite 001, Monterey, Ca. 93940.

County seeks another Health Commissioner

Fifth District Supervisor Sam Karas is seeking a volunteer to fill a vacancy on Monterey County's Mental Health Commission. The Commission consists of 16 members appointed by the Board of Supervisors. The Commission reviews community mental health needs and services and makes an annual report to the supervisors. Members serve for three year terms.

The Commission meets on the last Wednesday of the month at 5 p.m. at the Health Department multi-purpose room at 19065 Portola Drive, Suite L, Salinas.

Interested person residing in the Fifth District (Carmel, Carmel Valley, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Big Sur, Pebble Beach) are encouraged to send a letter and resume by November 30, 1995, stating their desire to serve, including home address and daytime telephone number to: Supervisor Sam Karas, 1200 Aguajito Road, Suite 001, Monterey, Ca. 93940.

Supes honor CV Kiwanis for help in Cachagua

At their regular meeting on November 14, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors voted to adopt and present a Resolution thanking and recognizing the Carmel Valley Kiwanis and the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District for their contributions toward the multi-purpose play field at the Cachagua Community Park.

Traffic delays to install water mains

California-American Water Company and their contractor Monterey Peninsula Engineering, will be installing 3 miles of 30 inch water pipe as part of the ongoing water system improvement project.

The project will begin construction on November 15, 1995 and will take approximately 13 weeks to complete. Construction will take place from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Traffic will be subject to delays.

Construction begins on Carmel Valley Road at Valley Green Drive to Carmel Rancho Boulevard.

Carmel Valley photographer on display in SF

William Giles, whose Gallery & Studio is on Del Fino Place in the Village, will have a showing of his photographic work on November 16 at the San Francisco Production Group, 550 Bryant Street, San Francisco.

The artist's description of the beauty of photography is that those few and rare moments of becoming one with the object seen can later be shared with others and like stars in the sky give meaning to one's life.

Annual Marketplace this weekend

The 25th annual Homecrafter's Marketplace will be held at Sunset Community and Cultural Center, San Carlos and 9th Streets, Carmel on Saturday, November 18.

Homecrafters is the annual Christmas gift show consisting of over 300 local art and craft people. The hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is free. Food is available. For more information call 659-5208.

Local participants include: Lois Dew, Tularcitos 5th grade science; Kimberly Birdsong, Tularcitos Parent Club; Cathleen Tegtmeier, Cachagua 4-H; David Behor, pottery; Ellen Vandervort, wood reindeer; Erin Kenyon, topiaries; Steve Rial, windsox, bags; Gretha Rial, dried flower wreaths; Diane Swift, natural impressions; Bonnie Frisk-Dombrowski, soap; Debra Ferreboeuf, calligraphy.

CHS students score high in state wide academic contest

A total of 546 students from a field of approximately 5300 competitors from 190 California high schools achieved distinction in the 1995 UCSB Undergraduate Fellowship and Prize Competition in Mathematics and Sciences conducted by the College of Creative Studies at U.C. Santa Barbara.

Participating students took challenging examinations in one or more categories of biology, computer science, chemistry, mathematics and physics. Those who achieved distinction qualify to take the advanced examinations in these areas and claim this honor on their college applications. The top scorers in both the qualifying and the advanced exams will also win cash prizes.

Carmel High School seniors Peter Bolton, Abby Rosenthal and Lauren Picard placed in the U.C. Santa Barbara College of Creative Studies prize competition in math and chemistry. They will each advance to second level exams next week. They were in the top eight percent of the students who took the exam statewide.

wanted to change occupations and become a doctor. "As usual, fate stepped in and I became a science teacher instead. Then a former fellow professor from the DLI let me know about the financial planning field and I took another turn."

"I have been in the field since 1973 and I couldn't imagine any other life. My clients are my friends." Doug also writes the Valley Finance column for the Sun. He and Sarah Anne are active in many of the fund raising and volunteer events that go on in the Valley. "Sarah Anne is one of the founders of the Volunteers in Action organization", states Doug. "I'm originally from Boston and she was from New York city. We both feel this is paradise."

"As a family, we enjoyed cycling and hiking. We wanted our activities together to be fun. The discipline that Heather's swimming schedule demanded was horrendous. Whatever we did had to be fun for everyone."

Doug reflects on Heather's future. "She is a senior, on leave for a year, St. Mary's College majoring in English. She is planning to complete her degree after the Olympics, then who knows. She will take her own path." The smile sneaks back as Doug runs a hand through his gray tinged sandy hair.

Looking into his eyes there is a sense that while he is proud of Heather's accomplishments, he is even proud of who she is.
